

Abstract

A messaging system having a network interface unit (NIU) with an embedded services processor (ESP) that provides a general purpose computing capability within the NIU that supports the streaming of data for the messaging system with external computer
5 networks, and that may also have the ability to connect to networks external to the messaging system via that general purpose computing capability is disclosed.

10038962-010302